WHERE WILL THE SLAUGHTER STOP?

Another "Greatest Mining disaster" of the West has come to light in the destruction of the miners at Primero, Colorado. The statement that this is the worst in the history of the western country depends on how far back you wish to consider the generic term of "the West." The recent disaster at the Cherry mine in Illinois was far worse than the event of day before yesterday and the tragedy at Hanna, Wyoming, five years ago added 138 dead to the list of men who sacrificed their lives to the greed of coal companies that failed to provide adequate protection for their workers. In the case of the Primero mine it must be understood that it is reckoned among the most hazardous in the United States. The ground is highly impregnated with gases that make the product valuable for coking purposes and consequently increases the risk to the workers. In such cases it would seem perfectly natural for a mining company to surround itself with extreme precautionary measures but nothing of the kind seems to have been done. The miners were apparently of the lowest grade of intelligence consisting of the cheapest class of imported labor and it will probably be revealed at the inquest that the explosion that hurried over one hundred men to eternity was due to the carelessness or ignorance of one of the miners in venturing into a gaseous section of the mine with exposed lamps or the neglect of ordinary precautions in setting off a blast. The truth may not be known for some time but when it does appear the fact that American labor is the cheapest in the end will be emphatically emphasized. As the Tribune has stated before the immunity of the metal mines from such terrible disasters can be traced directly to the superior intelligence of the men employed in the underground workings.—Goldfield Tribune.

SOCIAL CLUB
WILL GIVE DANCE
THIS EVENING

PATRONS OF THE TERPSICHOREAN ART WILL BE ENTERTAINED.

The weekly dance of the Tonopah Social club at the Miners' Exchange hall this evening promises more than the usual marked interest characteristic of these pleasant functions. The fact of one hour's gratuitous lesson adds much to the zest of the evening's enjoyment, places the patron in the position of guest and reveals Terpsichore in her gentlest, sweetest mood.

The young stalwarts who are the bulwark of the club are emphatic in their determination to reach the satiety of the most fastidious and exacting. As witness the conditions surrounding—the smoothness of the pavilion floor, an excellent orchestra of five pieces, and an instructor of more than average ability, whose specialty covers the field of the intricate, the simplified and artistic in motion.

This evening's special number by Professor Walker will prove a revelation to Tonopahans, for, in the scientific sweep of "The Lasse Gale" is seen the solidarity of the soldier, and the musings of the merriest maiden.

CONTENTIONS SETTLED
BY COURT'S DECISION

An opinion on the contention between the Round Mountain Hydraulic Mining company and the Round Mountain Daisy Mining company, who were defendants and co-defendants respectively in a suit filed by R. P. Dunlap, as receiver of the Round Mountain Banking corporation, was handed down yesterday by Judge M. R. Averill in the district court.

The suit was over the ownership of a portion of the pipe line of the hydraulic company, and it was adjudged in the decision that the Daisy company had no interest in the line, owing to the failure to pay an obligation that existed with the Hydraulic concern.
